

HOME HAPPENINGS

All men between the ages of 18 and 45 years, who have not already registered for military service, must do so Thursday, Sept. 12, at their usual place of voting. Patriots will register. Others must.

The Canfield public schools reopen Monday, Sept. 16.

Patriots will register next week Thursday. Others must.

Everything is in readiness for the big Canfield fair next week.

Better store coal now. Next winter it is likely to be unobtainable.

On account of holiday, Aaron Wiesner's clothing store will be closed Saturday.

Quilt pitching is a favorite pastime for Canfield young men, and some of older growth.

Council met Monday night but about the only business transacted was the passing of the pay ordinance.

A large crowd attended the meeting of Dublin grange Tuesday night and a pleasing program was presented.

All roads will lead to Canfield next week Wednesday and Thursday when the fair will be on in all its glory.

Registration of men between 18 and 45 years of age comes on the last day of the Canfield fair, Thursday, Sept. 12.

The South Broad street road is being resurfaced, tarvia being used, and will be in fine condition for the fair next week.

Most of the village business places closed at 10 o'clock on Labor Day, and the town generally had the appearance of Sunday.

Many old automobile tires are being brought to the Ford garage for the Red Cross which will sell them, funds being much needed by the organization.

Gov. Charles S. Whitman of New York, former Canfield boy, was on Tuesday renominated by the republicans by a big majority for a third term.

Farmers in some localities complain of thieves who travel in automobiles, plunder orchards, corn fields, henneries, and even haul away live hogs.

On account of continuous rain Thursday it was necessary to hold the community day exercises in the Methodist church instead of the park, as had been planned.

There was no joy-riding Sunday but there was enough to make up for it next day—Labor Day—when it seemed as though every owner of a machine that would run had it in action.

The sales of thrift and war savings stamps at the Canfield postoffice during the month of August approximated $5,000. And people are starting in to make just as good a record in September.

One of the first arrivals at the county teachers' institute was Prof. M. A. Kimmel, for many years at the head of the Poland schools and a member of the board of county school examiners. His friends in the county are legion.

May, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Williams of Warren, was drowned in the Milton reservoir Monday afternoon. She was clinging to a boat rowed by some friends when her hold slipped and she drowned before help could reach her.

There surely was conservation of gasoline last Sunday. Very few automobiles being operated in this locality. It has been many a day since so many horse-drawn vehicles were in evidence. Old Dobbin surely came into his own, and that will no doubt be the order while gasolineless Sundays are observed.

The county experiment farm market truck was struck by a big truck on the Starr hill, east of the village, last Saturday morning and considerable damage done. The truck was being taken to market in Youngstown when it was hit by the driver of the farm truck escaped injury.

Mrs. W. J. Gee, mother of Charles B. Gee, the first Canfield boy to give up his life in the present war, having died last October in a naval hospital in Philadelphia, has received from the government a check for $225 and been advised that she will receive $25 monthly for 20 years or until a total of $5,000 is forwarded.

A train of forty Liberty war trucks in charge of soldiers broke the monotony last Sunday afternoon. One of the boys remarked that he had seen more old harness during the day than he had gazed upon for five years, due to the fact that horses pretty generally were doing business instead of automobiles.

All roads leading into Canfield which are closed for repairs or building will be open for the fair next week with the single exception of the road between Chidester's Corners and the Ellsworth township line. Coming to Canfield from Ellsworth on this road it will be necessary to detour through Dublin.

The Smith-Bachmann Machine Co. has increased its force of workmen who are working over-time on rubber hose making machinery for a Wisconsin firm which has government orders for hose for airplanes. Four machines weighing many tons are in course of construction and when completed will be shipped by express.

A lot of benches brought from Camp Park and placed in the park for the accommodation of people who attended the community day doings Thursday will be taken to the fair grounds for use during the fair next week. This will please a large number of people who have for years complained about the absence of seats on the fair grounds.

County Road Engineer E. S. Smith had a corps of surveyors at work on the West Main street road which is to be rebuilt and widened six feet. This highway was badly damaged last spring by war truck traffic, and parts of it are still almost impassable. Just when the work of constructing the road will begin is not definitely known, but it is hoped to have the job completed before bad weather sets in.

The drought is broken, rain having come frequently the past week, and Thursday was an all-day contributor of wet goods.

There is a sugar famine in Canfield, only one dealer having a very limited supply, and the demand for canning sugar is very great. It is hoped the situation may be relieved in the course of a few days.

Miss Anna Slagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Slagle of Columbiana, formerly of Canfield, and Harry Oesch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Oesch, who reside north of Columbiana, were united in marriage Tuesday by Rev. E. P. Wykoff, pastor of the Columbiana Methodist church.

Union services will be held in the Presbyterian church next Sunday, 8 p. m. Eastern time. Andrew Forsythe, Columbus, Ohio, will deliver an address on the subject "Victory Through Sacrifice." This meeting will mark the opening of the local campaign for state-wide prohibition.

Contributions of old ties to Mahoning Chapter, Red Cross, are coming in steadily and it is thought that residents of Canfield and vicinity will respond in the same liberal manner that has characterized previous war activities. All contributions should be turned in on or before Saturday, Sept. 7.

For use in the making of gas masks for our soldiers the government wants peach, apricot, cherry, plum, olive and date seeds and walnut, hickory and butternut shells, and asks people to save them. People living in Canfield and vicinity will please send their contributions along the above line to the Dispatch office and same will be turned over to the local auxiliary of the Red Cross for delivery to the authorities.

But here I am, on another tangent, and you need thinking of the time the "jackets" crawled up your pantsleg and tormented you. Got our mind's eye on boyhood incidents instead of on the Canfield Fair, incidentally, and that Horticultural exhibit particularly.

I mentioned "A canning exhibit and demonstration" by the Horticultural Society. Miss Moneys. She cannot only tell you all you need to know about "canning" but she can pronounce her name—I can't. When she gets started to talk you will at once conclude she is a "live wire." She starts you off on the subject of canning, and then with the "reverse lever," telling you probably to "eat what you can and can what you can't," a sort of de-Hooverized conservation; but before she has your mental can filled and sealed, you will discover that she has said several things you didn't know, especially about the practical side of food conservation. Mr. Lehman says she will talk and demonstrate in the Horticultural Tent, but didn't tell the hour. Just come in and look over our exhibit while you wait. If you should think of any questions to ask about fruits, vegetables, or canning, Mr. Lehman will be glad to answer them in the three days of the fair, but he can answer your questions, to your satisfaction.

Next—"A cattle exhibit by the Mahoning County Improvement Association." Ten cows, five from each of two associations. Nine heifers from Mahoning County Club. Boys will take care of the heifers. These will be put up for sale (I mean the heifers) on the afternoon of the last day. And here is where Mr. Parshall gets a chance to talk. Don't miss it if you want a calf.

No, these cows and calves will not be under the Horticultural tent. Mr. Lehman didn't tell me where they will be. Just follow Mr. Parshall, or ask him.

There will be thousands of other agricultural exhibits at the Canfield fair, that's why it is the biggest county fair in the state. Here's a few:

For nearly 20 years, Clay and Knauf, rival florists, have filled the north wing of the exhibition building with flowers and plants a veritable conservatory. It's worth going miles to see. They'll be there again; you can't keep them away. They'll crowd our old school-mate, Ruppert, off the map; but he'll be there too, with his display of Indian relics, coins of all nations (except Germany).

The east wing, of course, will be a great feature—strictly agricultural. There you'll see asparagus and artichokes; beets and broccoli; chicoria and celeriac; dandelions and petasai; endive and egg plant; garlic and gombo; kale and kohlrabi; lettuce and lunette; mustard and mayonnaise; peas and potatoes; onions and oysters; radishes and rhubarb; squashes and spinach; tomatoes and turnips and "other things too numerous to mention." You may not know all of them when you see them; I don't think I could. But I could tell you about them. Then the Dublin grange, and possibly two or three others, will have competing exhibits; mighty good ones they have been—this year they will be better. If you can't find them ask John Martin—he's a granger, I think.

THE MAHONING COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY AND THE CANFIELD FAIR

Ask the average farmer what agriculture means and he would probably think you a fool for asking the question. If he gave you an answer it would probably be "Agriculture is the business of raising products from the land." L. H. Bailey says: "It is customary to limit the word agriculture to the growing of grains, forage, breadstuffs, textile and the like, and to the raising of animals." Webster says: "In a general sense it is the cultivation of the ground for the production of vegetables and fruits for the use of man and beast; or the art of preparing the soil, sowing and planting seeds, dressing the soil and growing the crop; also the raising and feeding of cattle or stock." Both correct, no doubt, but they have failed to mention two products of the farm, the harvest of which required the greatest activity. I remember, as boys, we all ran on "bays" and "lifers" of humpies and yellowjackets. Miniature bombing airplanes they were. Every time they went "over the top" we would "von Hindenburg" to a more strategic line of defense. Maxim, Lewis and Browning machine guns are slow in comparison.

But here I am, on another tangent, and you need thinking of the time the "jackets" crawled up your pantsleg and tormented you. Got our mind's eye on boyhood incidents instead of on the Canfield Fair, incidentally, and that Horticultural exhibit particularly.

Something of a menagerie. There you will see "The bowlegged baboon from Borneo," "Sambo-with-head-through-a-hole," "Teddy Bears," "The wild woman from Wonderland," "Three-throws-for-a-nickel" and several other quadrupeds and bipeds. (The "Licked Juden-Scott from Ukraina" will be there next year.) When you get through you will wonder where to get a nickel to buy peanuts for the kiddies; for you probably will have nothing left but a bewildered memory.

But before you visit the Midway you should see the Horticultural Exhibit. I have tried to tell you about it. Fruits of all kinds, and many other things; good to look at and good to eat—some of them. Mr. Taggart announced at our last horticultural meeting that on the last day of the fair most of the fruits on exhibition will be sold; the proceeds to be divided between the Red Cross and the Horticultural Society. Many of the apples will be ripe enough to eat, the others will all ripen "while you wait." If you wait long enough.

There will be hundreds of other things at the fair; most of them worthy of mention. I have mentioned only a few. I would mention more but have already exceeded the space limit; way beyond both ends of your "yard stick." And my breakfast is ready; just now it's more important than even the Horticultural Exhibit.

You may forget everything I have said, and everything else; but don't forget the Canfield Fair, the Horticultural Society and its exhibit. Date, Sept. 10, 11 and 12; place, Canfield, O.; exact location, just across the pike from the "corn plots" on Mahoning County Experiment Farm.

Yours for a great fair.

M. B. TEMPLIN, Sec. Hort. Soc.

Note—Since sending in the above article I am informed that the fair board has granted us the use of the south wing of the main exhibition building for the Horticultural exhibit.

fore don't hunt for the big tent. The exhibit promises to be better than anticipated.

Nearly every man in business seems inclined to think the war has hurt his business just a little bit more than any others. The grocer, the auto dealer, the builder, the tailor the jeweler, the miller, etc., all believe they are worse off than anyone else. As a matter of fact nearly every business suffers some, which the most is hard to determine. With prices as they are it appears that somebody is making huge profits but sometimes they fail to materialize. That is why the profiteer should be checked. No man or concern has a right to make gains off the ill luck of someone else.
